Introduction

Successful business depends on Customer Service. It is essential to understand that every employee is involved in customer service. Everyone in every organization is a customer of some kind. It has been proven that customers would rather switch to another company than tolerate poor service. Research indicates, even if there is no conflict, over 60% of all customers quit dealing with a business because of indifference on the part of some employee.

The ability to interact effectively with customers may be the critical difference between success or failure in our work life. Effective customer service begins with an accurate perception of our own work behavioral style. This report was designed to quantify information on how you see your own behavior in the workplace. That information may then be used for you to learn how others perceive your behavior. This knowledge will assist you in formulating strategies in meeting customer needs.

General Characteristics

Based on your responses, the report has selected general statements to provide you with a broad understanding of your Customer Service Style. This section of the report identifies the natural customer service style you bring to the job.

Sally likes to set her own pace. When others try to rush her, she feels threatened and may balk. At times she can be quite skeptical. Others may misinterpret this strength as a negative one, but she is only seeking needed data. She sometimes finds it difficult to relax until all the work is completed. Leisure time activities often include friends and family. She tends to build a close relationship with a relatively small group of associates. Sally is good at concentrating in order to listen and learn. She is not easily distracted by peripheral activity. She is family-oriented. She may go to great lengths to ensure the "happiness" of her personal or work family. She is a team player but can also exhibit a desire for independence. Outwardly, she may appear to be totally accepting of others. She may, however, have deep convictions that are not apparent to others. Once Sally has come to a decision, others may find it difficult to change her mind. If changes are inevitable, and she sees enough benefits, they will be made. She likes to win through persistence. She uses her strong, steady tendencies to accomplish her goals. She can be spontaneous and casual in familiar circumstances. The familiar atmosphere allows spontaneity when she is in her comfort zone. She doesn't resist change as much as she resists being changed. She needs to be an active participant in situations that will impact her work.

Sally often thinks over major decisions before acting. She tends to make decisions based on past experiences. She prefers the "tried and true." Once she makes a decision, she can be organized in carrying it out. When challenged she can become objective, searching hard for facts and figures. This may be her way of defending her decisions. Once she has arrived at a decision, she can be tough-minded and unbending. She has made her decision after gathering much data, and she probably won't want to repeat the process. She is good at analyzing situations that can be felt, touched, seen, heard, personally observed or experienced. Her motto is, "facts are facts." She may be reluctant to initiate new approaches to doing things. If she is shown the benefits, she will consider new procedures. She can be sensitive to the feelings of others and is able to display real empathy for those who are experiencing difficulties.

Sally is somewhat reserved with those she doesn't trust or know. After trust has been established, she may be open and candid. She usually is considerate, compassionate and accepting of others; however, on some occasions can become stubborn. Stubbornness surfaces when her ideals and beliefs are confronted. She is more motivated by logic than emotion. To her, logic represents tangible research. Sometimes she will withdraw from a verbal battle. If she feels strong about an issue, she may retreat to gather her resources and then return to take a stand! Sally can be outgoing at times. Basically introverted, she will "engage" in social conversation when the occasion warrants. Rarely does she display her emotions; that is, she projects a good poker face. Others may get the feeling that she is unfriendly, when in reality she is not. She may guard some information unless she is asked specific questions. She will not willingly share unless she is comfortable with the knowledge she possesses about the topic. She tends to be possessive of information; that is, she doesn't voluntarily share information with others outside of her team. This may be a blessing, or a curse, to her superiors.

The Success Insights® Wheel

The Success Insights® Wheel is a powerful tool popularized in Europe. In addition to the text you have received about your behavioral style, the Wheel adds a visual representation that allows you to:

- View your natural behavioral style (circle).
- View your adapted behavioral style (star).
- Note the degree you are adapting your behavior.
- If you filled out the Work Environment Analysis, view the relationship of your behavior to your job.

Notice on the next page that your Natural style (circle) and your Adapted style (star) are plotted on the Wheel. If they are plotted in different boxes, then you are adapting your behavior. The further the two plotting points are from each other, the more you are adapting your behavior.

If you are part of a group or team who also took the behavioral assessment, it would be advantageous to get together, using each person's Wheel, and make a master Wheel that contains each person's Natural and Adapted style. This allows you to quickly see where conflict can occur. You will also be able to identify where communication, understanding and appreciation can be increased.
